CONTENTS

Introduction
Catherine Paul • Writing Modern Ireland ................................................................. 3

Essays
Ronald Schuchard • Yeats in Extremis ................................................................. 5
Ed Madden • “Here, of all places”: Geographies of Sexual and Gender Identity in Keith Ridgway’s The Long Falling .......................................................... 20
Michael J. Sidnell • Beckett’s Discovery of Theater: Human Wishes and the Dramaturgical Contexts of Eleutheria ........................................................... 36
Wim Van Mierlo • “I have met you too late”: James Joyce, W. B. Yeats, and the Making of Chamber Music .............................................................. 50
Margaret Mills Harper • Flesh and Bones: Anne Enright’s The Gathering .......... 74
Alexandra Poulain • “Westward ho!”: The Only Jealousy of Emer, From Nob to Tragedy ............................................................. 90
Ken Monteith • Enabling Emer, Disabling the Sidhe: W. B. Yeats’s “The Only Jealousy of Emer” ......................................................... 99
John Dennison • “To construct something upon which to rejoice”: Seamus Heaney’s Prose Revisions ......................................................... 116
Jonathan Allison • “The Old Moon-Phaser”: Yeats, Auden, and MacNeice .... 162
Michael Cade Stewart • A Satyric Paradise: The Form of W. B. Yeats’s “News for the Delphic Oracle” .......................................... 178
Wanda Balzano • Abroad and at Home: The Question of the Foreigner in Kate O’Brien’s Mary Lavelle ........................................... 185
Rand Brandes • Mercury in Taurus: W. B. Yeats and Ted Hughes ................. 198
Wayne K. Chapman • “Notes Chirruping Answer”: Language as Music in James Joyce and Virginia Woolf ................................... 213
Hedwig Schwall • Allegories of Writing: Figurations of Narcissus and Echo in W. B. Yeats’s Work ................................................... 221
Jefferson Holdridge • The One Loved Form: Art, Nature, Myth, and Instinct in Irish Literature ...................................................... 238

Poems in Translation
Patrick Crotty • Four Songs from The Penguin Book of Irish Poetry (Forthcoming) 111

Poetry
Allan Gillis • In a Nondescript Town • Graduation Day • On Cloughey Beach ................................................................. 33
Leontia Flynn • Catullus ...................................................................................... 88
Gary Allen • True North • A Pound of Flesh • Circle ........................................ 175
Joseph Allen • Folk Music • Dorothea ................................................................ 211

Reviews
Sarah Del Collo • Wilde, Sex, Lies, and Sir Edmund Trelawny Backhouse .......... 253
Duff Brenna • Where the Honor Lies ................................................................. 257
As announced in SCR volume 42, the current number is a special, guest-edited one, followed by a return to our accustomed format and range in content. We are pleased to announce at this time the winners of the SCR Poetry Contest for 2009/2010. They are as follows:

First Prize, for “Beauties and Beasts,” Celisa Steele
Second Prize, for Altitude Sickness at the Folk Art Museum,” Erin Bealmear
Third Prize, for “first and amistad,” Kayla Revae Porth
Honorable Mention, for “Asking for a Divorce,” Salita Bryant
Honorable Mention, for “Flora,” Margaret Mackinnon
Honorable Mention, for “The Lament for Whitehorse Billy,” Leland James Whipple

All six of these poems will be featured, on point, in the spring 2011 issue. They will be keeping company with the work of more than thirty additional poets, the provocative non-fiction prose of the Republic of Letters, scholarly essays on Thomas Wolfe and Matthias Grünewald, Eudora Welty and photography, William Faulkner's influence on James Dickey, John Ashbury and the sublime, and H. G. Wells and subjugation. Also featured are tributes to J. D. Salinger and Barry Hannah, as well as a slate of original short fiction by Mary Beth Leymaster Matteo, Mark Blaustein, Deborah-Anne Tunney, Gary Fincke, Aja Gabel, Stephen March, Patricia Brieschke, and Craig Boyko. And, of course, we will round out the medley with a host of critical reviews and review-essays on various literary, cultural, and historical subjects.

We are pleased to call your attention to the unusual release of our first completely online-only special issue of SCR, entitled Edward Dowden: A Critical Edition of the Complete Poetry, Wayne K. Chapman (ed.), anticipating the present Irish number as vol. 42, no. 3 (Summer 2010). This is outside subscription and beyond the two printed issues of this past year and doubles as the first volume in a monographic series posted on the SCR Themed site “Ireland in the Arts and Humanities.” If demand merits, we may print copies for those who wish to purchase one for their library or personal collection. It is a natural addition to the Bibliographic Studies page on the Clemson University Digital Press website, where it will be joined, in coming weeks, by Writing Modern Ireland. As economic circumstances motivate creative solutions, we hope our readers approve of the novelty and perspicacity of the experiment as we might like to repeat the exercise at some point in the future. —WKC